McAdoo Says "After You, Mr. Brennan"

Unless the leaders of the principal opposing forces in the Democratic national convention change their minds, a mere majority and not the two-thirds vote now required will decided who will be the next Democratic candidate for President. The abolition of the present two thirds rule became a strong probability last night as the result of a statemen made in Lexington, Ky., by David Ladd Rockwell, national manager of the McAdoo presidential campaign. Earlier in the week Rockwell had been virtually challenged by George E. Brennan, Illinois Democratic leader, who is regarded as the most powerfu of the anti-McAdoo men, to agree to

This was the spirit of the Rev. "Billy " Sunday yesterday as he passed through Chicago on his way to the Mayo brothers' sanitarium in Rochester, Minn. The evangelist, according to his doctor, was in a state of "complete physical and nervous breakdown." He had been forced to drop a revival in Memphis, Tenn., the first time in his life that has happened. But if the Rev. Mr. Sunday is down, he is a believer in the Salvation Army slogan that "a man is never out." Physically he looked much as ever, his face just a bit more deeply lined, but still full. And the famous Sunday eye still had its old gleam. But what about Hot Water?

The average-sized home with only one bathroom has become almost obsolete. A splendid tribute to our national passion for cleanliness. But what about hot water?

An old-fashioned water-heating contrivance incapable of supplying even the modest requirements of a one-bathroom-home is obviously out of the question. And yet a bathroom, regardless of the outlay you have made for porcelain and white tile, is only so much expensive scenery unless there is a dependable hot water supply to go with it.

are made in a wide range of sizes, with varying capacities to suit the needs of every home. Knowing the number of hot water outlets required, we can recommend a Humphrey Automatic of exactly the right capacity for your home.

You will find Humphrey service not only a wonderful convenience but an actual economy, for it is fitted to your needs - which means there is no waste. And you can depend upon instantaneous hot water at all times - in generous abundance - without effort on your part save the mere act of turning a faucet.

Modern plumbing conveniences require a modern hot water system—and you have that when you have a Humphrey Automatic.

ELECTRIC IRON

WHEN four dollars and fifty cents will buy a Simplex Spartan Electric Iron, it is an indication indeed, that the good old American dollar has come into its own as a purchasing unit. Never before has a quality iron been sold at or near this low price.

This beautifully finished iron, correct in design and construction, represents the greatest advance in electric iron manufacture in seven years.

Consider these exclusive Simplex features:

- Simplex Cord-Set with the new unbreakable all-steel plug that cannot chip, crack, crumble or break. Note the Simplex Evercool Ball Grip for removing and inserting the plug. While this Cord-Set is an exclusive Simplex feature, it can also be purchased for use on any iron or appliance.
- Air-cooled rest-stand that makes it possible to leave iron on board without danger of scorching. Saves constant lifting.
- 3 Ornamental air-cooled terminal guard that protects the contacts.

There are easier, cooler and far more satisfactory ironing days ahead for the housewife who buys one of these irons.

Let your dealer demonstrate the many new features of this new iron. See if you don't agree that it is the biggest iron value ever offered.

The Pathos of Riches

The effects of wealth, sometimes enviable, are more often pathetic.

For few know how to possess wealth gracefully, and even as riches are many times garnered without conscience, so they are employed, too commonly, without dignity.

The spectacle of a half-naked African potentate in linen collar and plug hat is not more pathetically comic than self-conscious wealth or than the deference of wealth to greater wealth.

But education, the great leveler, progresses steadily, and here in Chicago is wealth of various sorts for all to claim. Art, literature, music, friendships worth while, spring in the forest preserves, long stretches of old Lake Michigan's sandy shore, and countless other riches almost all may enjoy.

And in all America there will be served this morning no breakfast of more wholesome and delicious quality than any one of average prosperity may have every morning at Henrici's.

Why not Henrici's for breakfast this morning, or luncheon this noon, or dinner this evening, or late supper tonight?

TAG DAYS ARE BETTER THAN BEGGARS.

Kicking on tag days is a popular pastime and others. The habit, if limited carefully to legitimate and general needs, is not a bad one.

To the individual the cost of tag days is not greater than his day's taxation in tips. It is not greater than his smoking or gum chewing fees, is not great and the bother may be soon forgotten. Americans are rarely pikers.

Europe has a different system. The beggary and misfortune exposed on the streets of an average European city is humiliating to the human ress achieved. race. Beggars and cripples pester the streets with their appeals. Some may be worthy. Others are not. No one knows.

America is better. Even a tag day every day would cost less in money and in human degradation than the daily exposition of beggary costs

The dry-radicals.

There isn't an orator in the country who could successfully defend the proposition that there are any live issues today that are distinctly Republican, or distinctly Democratic. The liquor question, and the issue of progressiveism as raised by Roosevelt in 1912, are bound to be the great outstanding points in the 1924.

ical will remain an issue long after the wet issue is settled and forgotten. It is, vivid recollection of the slogan that appeared for months at the head of the editorial column of The Tannun, five years ago, when the league of nations was being depated in the senate.

"For the league with reservations." That was the bold "excelsior" sign which you displayed at the head of your editorial page morning after morning in those stormy days, when the irreconcilable senators were battering the league to pieces.

Now the irreconcilables are nearly all gone from the senate, leaving a few

Senator Moses was recently defeated for delegate to the Cleveliand envention. His constituents failed to reward him for helping to kill the league. Senator Reed, the boldest of them all, was saved two years age by 40,000 Republican troops from St. Louis marching across "no man's" land into the Democratic primary, only to be repudiated this year by his party associates in Missouri.

THE NATIONAL WEEKLY PUBLISHED BY THE OWNERS OF THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE FOR WHICH OVER ONE WILLION DEODLE SUCCESSION NAMED BY THE OWNERS OF THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE FOR WHICH OVER ONE WILLION DEODLE SUCCESSION NAMED BY THE OWNERS OF THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

A New Force In American Business

The story of this new 5c national weekly begins in the forests of northeast Canada, acquired to control the source of wood pulp.

It comes down the rushing rapids to ocean-going vessels specially built and owned.

Thence the story leads to mammoth mills where trees are turned into paper, to ink factories, to batteries of most modern presses, to improved color printing processes and amazing facilities for volume production at a new speed—each step owned, controlled and focused at the one ultimate purpose.

Those are the physical or manufacturing chapters -

Next the story includes an international organization of news-photographers from Japan to Cairo; from Siberia to Washington, anticipating and recording with cameras the news events.

Around the world are expert reporters, famous authors and artists, each playing a definite role in this story, which extends back to before the Civil War and comes down through seventy-five years of experience publishing The Chicago Tribune.

The story is incomplete without embracing the comprehensive and highly trained organization for business analysis and research work; and, the most efficient and effective nation-wide circulation methods.

The most recent chapter in this story is the spectacular success of the News of New York.

Briefly sketched, the foregoing outlines the scope, experience and resources behind this new weekly; why it is the logical and crowning achievement of a vast publishing organization; why it instantly becomes a leading, dominant factor in the nation's home and business life. Its acceptance by the public is assured with almost mathematical accuracy.

Many of America's leaders in business have been quick to appreciate the importance and power of this new publication as a controlling force in the nation's business activities.

They want their advertising messages in it.

For this weekly is built on the belief that the right kind of advertisements are as essential to the welfare of American homes as they are to the success of American business.

The public enjoys this weekly because of its fine advertisements as well as its fine editorial content.

Jobbers and dealers buy this weekly because it is their current index of what people want, and a guide to what can be sold most profitably.

This trade influence is largely due to the new and improved make-up.

Advertisements are not considered a "passesser exil"

Advertisements are not considered a "necessary evil" but are included as an integral part entitled to share the public's interest with the editorial content.

To sell people you must reach them. It is the family as a unit that influences America's purchases. Therefore, this weekly is edited not only to reach the desired homes but to reach every member of the family.

In short, this publication is created on the principle that its obligation to readers and advertisers is identical. The Coloroto Corporation. Advertising Offices: Tribune Square, Chicago; Park Lexington Bldg., New York; Haas Bldg., Los Angeles.

This is the latest, and perhaps insignal, Shaving Cream. Consider these facts about it:

It is made in a laboratory which has spent 60 years in soap study. It is made by men whose creations are world-famons.

Bome of the great soaps for every purpose have been developed here. One of them—Palmolive Soap—is the leading tollet soap of the world.

We decided to attain the same supremacy in a Shaving Cream. So we asked 1000 average men to tell us what they most desired.

Most of them agreed on five requirements. Then we set out to excel all others on those points.

A new delight to millions In the past three years, Palmolive Shaving Cream has brought new delights Men tried it, then told others. Any druggist will tell you that this has become the sensation of its line.

Just because we served men, in the ways they wanted, better than all others.

Now we sak you to learn the result.

We claim you owe that to yourself and us. The test will cost you nothing.

He selected the grounds of wealthy merchant, Tadasaburo Tamamoto, who accompanied the late President Roose relt on his Corean tiger hunt, as the cene of the affair. ## Three times a day you make your choice

For Illness, Depression, Failurechoose the wrong kind of food.

For Health, Happiness, Efficiencychoose the right kind of food.

Rich and poor alike are the victims of malnutrition.

For malnutrition does not mean lack of food: more often than not it means too much food-and food of the wrong kind-food that not only fails to nourish but that may even form poisons.

Upon the carbohydrates (a great part of which comes from the grains) we depend for our power for mental and physical work. At least one-third of our nourishment should come from them.

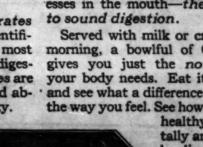

Yet in order that the body may be able to extract from them the nourishment it needs, they must undergo a special kind of preparation—so that they will not fail in their mission to provide the body with power, and begin, instead, to manufacture actual poisons.

Hence, He Argues, U. S. Shall Not Have Beer.

BY DONALD EWING.

Washington, D. C., May 14.—[Special.]—When boys and girls stay out all night drinking bootleg hooch, be-coming bobbed haired bandits, break-ing human and divine laws, blame it on the "taint of France".

That, in substance, was the testimony today of Bishop James Cannon, head of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, before the house judiciary committee hearing on bills to legalize the sale of 2.75 per cent beer.

"It was an awful dose France sent us," said the bishop. "I love France, but it was an awful dose and we're getting a lot of damage from it. The most righteous of our innocent country lads could not resist the loose women at every corner, the wine shops, women at every corner, the wine shops, the free living, and they came back tainted."

The hishop shifted most of our modern sits to France's shoulders, to the habits acquired by American boys during the war. Prohibition? As well repeal the ten commandments.

Increased sins among the young?
Maybe so—but not due to prohibition—

Maybe so—but not due to prohibition—too much war.

"And the hard drinking among the young?" asked Representative Perlman of New York. "Is that due to the war? And did the war also affect the girls? You admit that the young today are very wild?"

"Perhaps so," the bishop answered.

"I've been told so. I admit there is an slarming and inexplicable attitude of women toward morals. But it's not due to prohibition. It's due to the Akron Front and Center!

The bishop turned to Akron, O., for examples of the effect of prohibition.

"But," Perlman said, "in Akron in 1917 there were only 1,900 arrests for drunkenness against 7,000 in 1923."

The bishop doubted the figures and ended his testimony with a warning that if the Democrats nominate a wet.

In the light of the power, speed and smoothness of the Packard-Eight, its luxurious ease of riding, and its unequalled beauty, consider these mechanical details:

About half as many points requiring lubrication as in some V-type eights. Parts so accessible with service charges so low that engines of more complicated design cannot stand comparison. The Packard Fuelizer, an exclusive Packard feature, which speeds up acceleration, reduces the warming up period in cold weather, contributes to fuel economy and diminishes dilution of crankcase oil. WANNER MALLEABLE CASTINGS COMPANY

After 6250 miles, I cannot refrain from telling you how wonderful I think my Packard "8" is.

I have driven it as high as 68 miles per hour, and the throttle was not wide open, and I have made over 300 miles in a day without fatigue.

My experience covers seventeen years of driving and fourteen cars. I am probably a "crank" on motor cars, and have never before found a combination of speed, power, get away, perfect brakes, good mileage, easy riding and beautiful design. I have thought this combination was too much to expect, but I find them all in the Packard "8".

Everyone remarks on the comfort and easy riding and I get twelve miles to the gallon in mild weather. The four wheel brakes are 100% perfect.

I am also the owner of one of the most expensive American cars and the Packard replaced a car worth $7300, but for my own driving I prefer the Packard.

Supplying materials for laying linoleum daily within a radius of 40 miles

Two Speed Wagons at the O. W. Richardson Company daily face the difficult task of keeping twenty-five to fifty men busy laying linoleum, carpet and other floor coverings in every section of Chicago and nearby cities.

The Speed Wagons go out at 8:15 and return after 4:30. Their average load is 1800 pounds of material for laying linoleum and carpets for points ranging from the Loop to Joliet, and from Gary to Waukegan.

The schedule is unusually exacting. Deliveries must be on time, for men must not be left idle on the job. Superlative speed and reliability are therefore absolutely necessary. This means quick getaway, agility in heavy traffic, and quick and sure braking. It means high pressure performance maintained day in and day out.

More power and speed, instant response to controls, greater riding ease, greater carrying capacity, maximum dependability, and low operating cost-these are the reasons given by the O. W. Richardson Company for their choice of the Speed Wagon over all other trucks of the same rated capacity or lighter.

Its ability to carry its loads smoothly over rough roads makes the Speed Wagon doubly valuable to the O. W. Richardson Company. For certain floor coverings become brittle in cold weather and are quickly cracked by jolting.

Low Operating Cost,

Several years of constant use had already proved the Speed Wagon's capacity to endure such severe service. So, when new trucks were needed for light delivery, the O. W. Richardson Company naturally added Speed Wagons to the trucks that had never failed them.

Covering 5,347 miles in less than five months, each truck has maintained an average cost of 2.8 cents a mile for gas, oil, garage and service. With the addition of the usual tire cost of 1.5 cents a mile, the total is 4.3 cents a mile-a cost considerably lower than that of light and very light trucks.

The Speed Wagon and your delivery

The Reo Speed Wagon, for the purpose designed, is the best self-propelled vehicle in the world. It will haul a pound, a bushel, a gallon-or any multiple up to its rated capacity-more cheaply and quickly than any other method of transportation.

Let us show you performance records obtained directly from Speed Wagon owners in Chicago and the State. They will explain why the Speed Wagon is equipped to serve you as is no other truck of any capacity, price, or power.

CITY ASKS I. C. C. ORDER SURFACE LINE EXTENSION

Wants "Special Equipment Fund" Used.

Orders compelling the surface lines to expend its "special equipment fund" in the building of extensions in districts now poorly served, are sought from the Illinois Commerce Commission in petitions filed yesterday by the city, through Corporation Counsel F. X. Busch.

The petitions block a possible last minute plea by the companies that funds for the new construction are not available.

In the petitions the city asserts that the companies have refused to build extensions as required under the set thement ordinance and predicts that inability to sell bonds or otherwise borrow money because its franchise ex

Under an order of the old public utilities commission on July 31, 1920, the petitions point out, the surface lines were authorized to create a "special equipment fund" which now exceeds $1,600,000. Monthly accretions to this fund approximate $170,000, and by Dec. 31, 1924, the fund will total $3,100,000. Of this amount about $1,400,000 will be used in payments on new cars now in process of building.

400,000 will be used in payments on new cars now in process of building.

The city seeks to force the companies to answer within ten days and show cause why the commission should not require them to spend the balance of the $3,100,000 in providing transportation facilities to newly builting sections and increase the service in others where it is now inadequate.

Track extension or additional capacity on the following streets is contemplated in the city's petitions:

And yet he loved her madly and she, for all her selfishness, loved him truly, too. Eternities apart in mind and soul. Irresistibly drawn to each other by passionate love that holds them together through seven married years. Then comes the inevitable. Zona Gale has written many a thrilling climax. Choice is a privilege one cherishes. Men and women in all parts of the world delight in making their choice, if it is possible.

Why do the best dressed men and women wear clothes made to their individual taste? Because they prefer to dictate the style and cut. There is a certainty of being pleased.

McCall printed patterns can't be imitated

The invention of the New McCall Printed Pattern revolu-tionized home sewing. It substituted printed word for puzzling perforations, a printed cutting outline for an in-accurate paper edge. Women who have been afraid of the difficulties of the old-fashioned pattern find they can easily use the McCall Printed Pattern. Home sewers now achieve style results they never could attain before.

In addition to its great simplicity and its accuracy the Printed Pattern offers in the "Printo Gravure":

- 1. Cutting-diagrams for two widths of material in each
- 2. Construction-diagrams showing how to assemble 3. Suggestions for materials and trimmings.
- 4. Photographic charts of finishing details and sewing

With this simple printed pattern, called "the greatest invention for women since the sewing machine," any woman can reproduce the newest, smartest style-creations from Paris. She can make them so easily, and so satisfactorily, that she gladly practices the economical art of home dressmaking.

The number of women who use McCall Patterns has increased 57% since a year ago. In a year millions of women buy and use over 30,000,000 McCall Printed Patterns. With a McCall Pattern, plus her own labor, a woman can have either twice as many clothes, or half the money in her clothes budget available for other purposes. The money thus saved—or released for purchasing other things—is conservatively estimated at $300,000,000 a

Last year 110,147,450 yards of piece goods were sold to the women who live on McCall Street. These women bought a billion dollars worth of silk, wool, and cotton goods, not to mention the miles of trimmings and ribbons

These materials are sold through more than 8,000 retail merchants whose stores are located on McCall Street and who carry McCall Printed Patterns.

Over 100,000,000 separate McCall units - publications and patterns-go out every year, into the homes of the nation. These include the Printed Patterns, the Fashion Sheets, the McCall Quarterly, the McCall Needlework, and McCall's Magazine-whose fashion section is to the woman an enchanted world of poetry and dreams, where the creations of the world's foremost designers are attractively displayed. From them she can select—and make - whatever her fancy pleases.

Over 548,000 women wrote McCall's Magazine last year on some home problem. Last month alone. McCall's Magazine received 97,323 letters from readers. This voluntary response from such a great number of women in the strongest possible evidence of the helpfulness of McCall's Magazine.

It is evidence of the service that reaches out into every part of our national life-the kind of service the President had in mind when he said that no great enterprise could prosper today for itself alone, it must serve others.

Doane supplied the hermit and his aughter with food and other necessities. He was their only visitor.

When Rhoda was about thirteen she saved the life of young Will Shepard who belonged the retry side of Tidewater. He had gone out in a motor boat, was caught in a erm, and his boat was being pounded to pieces on the rocks off the Point. Rhoda and refaiter went to the reacue and brought the boy back to their shack. Will Shepard lived in his cousin, old Miss Folly Shepard, in the great house called Shepard's Lee.

his host had not asked it. The effect was startling. The man had sprung up from his couch to seize him by the shoulders.

"What! You're one of the western Shepards? Jack's son—no, Cary's? Then for God's sake, do something! Bestir yourself! Build that wall! The house is doomed. I tell you, doomed. Do you realize what's slipping away little by little? Not only the land, but Virginia, everything Virginia stands are the self-based to remember—and it's a lost man or a little by little? Not only the land, but Virginia, everything Virginia stands for. Soon there'll be nothing left here to remember—and it's a lost man or a lost country that has nothing to remember. For generations it's been delay, wait, shilly-shally—and there are forces against us that won't wait. The sea, stronger tides than the sea—beating, beating."

Rhods approached her father with a little instrument in her hand. "Time for your medicine, papa. Don't get excited, the wind's gone down now. Never mind about the wall; you're so tired!"

"Now he'll sieep awhile," said Rhoda, "and I can sail you home."

As they parted at the Shepard's Lee pier, the boy, still thinking of that scene with the hypodermic, murmured awkwardly: "Of course, you know I—I won't speak about this."

"Won't you? All right," said Rhoda, indifferently.

She misunderstood his embarrassment, thought he was assumed of their acquaintance—she knew that county people looked down upon Ginney folk, and hardly blamed them. But what did that matter? She could not afford false pride. She was too desperately in need of companionship, of some one to talk with occasionally, besides her half-awake father and kind, busy Chief Doane. Comfortably unaware of what was afoot, Miss Folly made her slow and interested way among the haphazard houses of the oyster men and longshore folk, which certainly did not reflect their reputed prosperity. There was, however, a sunny, windswept cleanliness about this neighborhood, a tang of salt in the air, and of tar and of fish, which was not unpleasant. Nets hung over many of the fences, sea shells bordered the walks in the sandy yards, and the Ginney women, harking back to their gypsy ancestry, perhaps, seemed to carry on the greater part of their domestic arrangements out of doors. In more than one yard Miss Folly saw a cook stove in full operation; in others women was available obstilly at the tubes and the prevalence of children spoke well were washing chattily at the tubs; and the prevalence of children spoke well for the permanence of the community. The lady reflected, with a sigh, that tables were becoming rarer and rarer in her neighborhood. Yes, this was a

She found him on the beach in front of his own unpainted shanty, busy at the task his soul loved—boat building. A skeleton of a dory was on the stocks, and Doane, in corduroy trousers and what was apparently an undershirt (Miss Folly looked away too hastily to be sure) was working on it with several other men, all hammering and sawing and whistling industriously. People who sought and valued Doane's boats knew that each and every one of them was built under his own personal supervision. He would no more have left the finer points of his craft to the men he employed than a painter would leave any but points of his craft to the men he employed than a painter would leave any but the unimportant details of a picture to his pupils.

Doane recognized his visitor with a smile of pleased surprise. He came over to her, wiping the sweat from his brow, a powerful, unhurried figure that was not without its impressiveness. He made no apology for his appearance. Her eye, shocked but fascinated, took note of the hairy chest exposed by that anomalous garment, the play of huge supple muscles in arms and shoulders. anomalous garment, the play of huge, supple muscles in arms and shoulders, the glint of sunlight on his vigorous blonde beard. If the man was a gypsy, he was certainly a Norse gypsy; more, she thought, like some primitive figure out of the Old Testament. If he had not been so coarse and crude a type, she decided that Chief Doane would be positively handsome. She had rather an eye for a fine figure of a man, had little Miss Folly.

His welcome to her was neither coarse nor crude, but as easy and cordial as that of any Tidewater gentleman. "It certainly is good for sore eyes to see you here, ma'am! A mighty long time since you've complimented us with a visit." He engulfed her small, blue veined hand in his great rough one. "Won't you light, and take shelter from the sun?"

"No. I thank you. Donne. The sun feels pleasant to all the state of the sun feels pleasant to all the sun."

Won't you light, and take shelter from the sun?"

"No, I thank you, Doane. The sun feels pleasant to old bones like mine, especially down here near the water. I won't keep you a moment, since you're busy. Thomas! go out of earshot, and stay there," she commanded her man of all work, who had driven her thither.

"Yais'm," acquiesced Thomas reluctantly. He had his natural racial interest in the affairs of his family.

Doane, too, had orders to give. He lifted a great booming voice: "Hi, you Johnny! Find some ripe figs for the lady, and bring a mug of cider, and be quick about it."

Doane, too, had orders to give the lady, and bring a mug of cider, and be quick about it."

A shock headed boy issued from the cabin at a run, bearing a mug in one hand and the other a split basket full of the small greenish fruit. Miss Folly, hand to be outdone in courtesy, partook of both, although ripe figs happened to not to be outdone in courtesy, partook of both, although ripe figs happened to be the particular dislike, and cider disagreed with her acutely. The tradition of breaking bread in a friend's house is never disregarded in Virginia.

"This is your son, Doane?" she inquired, kindly.

By Mae Tinée.

Mary Roberts Rinehart wrote the story from which "The Breaking Point" is made. Not having read the original tale—can't say how close the picture version clings to it. The photopiay, however, resolves itself into a fairly interesting program offering.

Amnesia is what keeps the ball of suspense rolling. Know what that is?

It's the recently popular aliment that makes you forget who you are and makes you forget who you are and where the body is hidden. In the picture you are informed that every person has a breaking point. When

"Don't you want to learn how to sail and swim and all, like other boys? You won't be much of a man if you don't," she remarked frankly; and Will, Itahing, had quite agreed with her.

They settled that the next day they were to meet at a little island halfway between Shepard's Lee and the Point, Will in a rowboat and Rhoda with her seagul.

"And I'd better bring swimming clothes, too, hadn't I?" suggested the boy. His adolescent modesty received a shock. Rhoda laughed at him as she sailed off, her white teeth flashing unexpectedly out of her grave, brown little face.

"Clothes to swim in? Aren't you funny! I should think there?"

I did not find "The Breaking Point" particularly convincing or well directed. It is, however, well acted and photographed.

Sketched is just one instance of the use of fiannel. In this little yellow sleeveless sports trock bound with black groegrain ribbon, belted in black leather, and worn over a blouse of white radium, we encounter, to be sure, a persistent fiannelism. But at this point we have merely begun the roll call.

Next are to be found the suits—thousands of them—both in white and color. These are usually built on the same mannish principles as the regulation street wear tailleur and sometimes they gain added chic through the use of striped flannel col-

Flannel sleeveless jackets are greeting the summer in large groups and for the blazer is predicted a wider success than usual. There are separate flannel top coats, and when it comes to the separate skirts the designer can move in any direction after he has new chec

Buying in the towns is rather slow, but this is ascribed to the bad roads. In fact, as one travels eastward the business improvement is quite noticeable. At Estherville and Spirit Lake, I.a., the farthest point west this expedition went, buying was languishing and merchants were holding special sales. Through lower Minnesota from Jackson and Mankato and Minneapolis it was still slow. In the Twin Cities the retail trade in general is estimated to be about 18 per cent below normal.

TRIBUNE SERVICE TO TRAVELERS

If you wish to make the most of your next motor trip, get a line on routes and destination from

More than 50,000 people received automobile and travel information last year at The Tribune's Public Service Bureau—Il South Dearborn St.

Booklets descriptive of leading pleasure resorts, railway folders, time tables, automobile routes are being distributed daily.

Those who secure automobile touring information from The Tribune Bureau are given postals such as those here reproduced to mail back at intervals for the benefit of others.

The data on these postals are then tabulated in bulletin form and distributed by The Tribune to other information agencies.

The following letter shows how this distinctive Tribune service is appreciated:

A LETTER FROM THE CLEVELAND, O. AUTOMOBILE CLUB-CLEVELAND, O.

February 8, 1924.

The Tribune Touring Bureau, The Chicago Tribune. Chicago, Illinois:

It is with no little pleasure that I acknowledge receipt of your Tribune Touring Bureau Road Bulletin. I say without the least hesitation that this is the first bulletin issued by any one in Chicago which makes a comprehensive attempt to direct through travel. The secret of any road report is to start somewhere and end somewhere, and, as I have just said, there is no other organization in Chicago issuing a bulletin of this nature, or at least I have never seen one. No bulletin can possibly be of any benefit to the ordinary user unless it covers a given route, and we certainly want to congratulate you upon the form in which your bulletin is issued.

We presume that you issue this bulletin at regular . intervals and I would greatly appreciate your placing this organization on your mailing list to receive the bulletin regularly.

Very truly yours,

For that $225 an acre was paid. Now the plan commission urges the acquisition of fifty-five more acres to square out the entire tract. The price asked for this is $1,000 an acre. This appears in a formal offer submitted to the board, and on public file.

More at $2,000. Commissioners have been shown a plat of the property which has been subdivided into fifty lots and have been told that it was the owner's intention o sell these at $2,000 each. One of the commissioners s

One of the commissioners suggested that the owner may not expect to get the full $1,000 per acre asked, but he said he believes the board cannot get the property in a condemnation proceeding for less than $500 an acre and probably would have to pay more.

About two years ago the board bought 115 acres in Niles Center. For all the first of these acres the board in the content of ners suggested eighty-five of these acres the board paid $600 an acre and for the other thirty approximately $1,000 an acre. It would take an up to date real estate man to indicate the price on this Niles Center property today, because the ele-vated extension will cut right through the forest preserve tract. To get this right of way the board sold between six and seven acres to the two electric companies interested. But in the vi-cinity one real estate subdivider is reported to have paid $4,800 an acre to cut into lots and receil. The records in the recorder's office indicate that another subdivider paid in the neighborhood of $4,000 an acre for property

One man offered to buy this property from the board for $200 an acre more than the public paid for it. To induce the board to sell he deposited a check for $5,000 and it remained in the board's hands for six weeks or two months. Another seeker for acres in that district has told one of the commissioners that if they get an offer of any proppreserve, he will gladly and quickly take all the property offered at that price, and pay a commission to get it. A recent sale of property in that vicinity is reported to have brought $1,500 an acre.

If you will take Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin systematically as the directions on the package call for you will soon digest your food properly and pass it out normally, and heartburn, belching, dizziness, nervousness and bloating will vanish. In time you can dispense with all medicines as Syrup Pepsin will have exercised the intestinal and stomach muscles so they act for themselves. Mr. Lewis F. Schultz of Reasnor, Ia., Mrs. Victor Knodler of 3625 Bank St., Louisville, Ky., and hosts of others will verify this.

And these statements Senator Jim acquired.

The following table showing the number of acres purchased each year, their cost, and the approximate price per acre, was prepared yesterday at the direction of one of the commissions. The table:

The public saving in purchasing, without necessary delay, the approximately 11,000 acres recommended for forest preserves is clearly indicated by the board's records.

One of the striking illustrations relates to the Deer Grove tract, one of the pretiest of the wooded areas acquired by the forest preserve commissioners. It is out northwest, in the town of Palatine, and stretches almost to the northern limits of Cook county.

This is a long oil varnish that flows out easily, levels smooth and even and dries with a high luster. As its name indicates, it is clear and pale in color, therefore it does not darken the surface underneath, but brings out its full beauty. It is an all 'round varnish producing best results on furniture, woodwork, floors, window-sills and linoleum.

Jewel Water White Varnish dries dust free in two hours and hard over night, which makes it especially desirable for floors. When dry, it is extremely tough and wear resisting—not easily marred, scratched or scarred. It is not affected by the action of hot or cold water, rain, alkalies, acids or oils. It can be repeatedly washed with soap and warm water, and the smooth, hard and non-porous finish does not catch or hold dust—qualities which combine to make it absolutely sanitary.

It will not chip, crack, peel nor turn white, but produces a finish that stays clear and bright in color.

WHY do investors lose so frequently? Not because of a dearth of good securities. Usually because they do not get all the facts before they spend the money or because they fail to have their list of investments properly analyzed from time to time.
